Grant for hospice: but legal wrangle goes on

JO DEEKS

jo.deeks@cambridge-news.co.uk

WORK is due to start soon to create a hospice outreach centre – despite a continuing legal challenge about the use of the building that will house it.

St Nicholas Hospice announced yesterday that it has received a £326,488 grant from the Department of Health to convert the Burton Centre, adjoining the library in Camps Road, Haverhill, into an outreach centre offering bereavement counselling, nursing support and a cafe.

Haverhill Town Council has negotiated to take over the building, previously used as a youth centre, from Suffolk County Council to establish a youth hub for the town.

Town Clerk Will Austin said while welcoming the hospice plan to establish a centre in the town, the council would continue to pursue its investigation of a possible legal challenge to the county council's decision to choose the hospice, as being contrary to its own policies.

A barrister is advising the council at a cost of £2,500, and will consider whether an injunction should be sought to prevent the hospice starting to convert the building until the issue is resolved.

The news that the hospice's funding bid had been successful was announced by Norman Lamb, Minister of State for Care Services yesterday, following the decision made last Thursday by St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Development Control Committee to unanimously approve the hospice's plans for the centre.

The Hospice plans to turn the under-used Camps Road building into an outreach centre where people and families living with life-shortening illnesses, such as cancer, heart failure, multiple sclerosis and motor neurone disease can access a range of services without having to travel to the Hospice's main site in Bury St Edmunds.

Proposals include counselling and therapy rooms on the first floor, while planned services include bereavement support, advice, medical and nurse clinics, complementary therapies, faith networks, group support for patients and carers as well as a drop-in centre.

Barbara Gale, St Nicholas Hospice Care Chief Executive, said: "I am delighted St Nicholas

Hospice Care has been awarded Department of Health grant funding to enable us to turn the Burton Centre into an outreach centre and better serve the community of Haverhill.

"Our development of the Burton Centre will be the first hospice outreach centre in West Suffolk.

"We have chosen Haverhill because of the large population and its growing need for more services for those at the end of their lives and in response to local requests."

A new lift and stairwell will give better access to the first floor, while the building and its facilities – including meeting rooms, activities space and offices – will be available to current users of the building and the public by prior arrangement.

The centre's café will also remain open to everyone, creating a social meeting point with a new external patio for everybody accessing services or visiting the centre. The library will continue to occupy and operate from its half of the building.

Haverhill Town Council had initially objected to plans to include a shop in the outreach centre, but the retail element was removed.

Concerns were also raised about the loss of the community facility and the impact of increased deliveries and collections.

The committee agreed that the plans would promote the vitality and viability of the town centre and not lead to the loss of a community facility.

Are Lottery pair new owners of funhouse?

LOTTERY winners Adrian and Gillian Bayford are believed to be behind moves to re-open a children's play centre which closed its doors suddenly earlier this year.

The Haverhill couple, who scooped £148 million in a Euromillions draw last summer, are thought to be the new owners of the former Cheeky Chimps Funhouse at Boundary Road, Haverhill.

A notice outside the premises says it is under new management and will be re-opening soon as Rascals Playbarn.

Painters working inside the play centre this week said it was due to open in May, but declined to comment on who its new owners were.

Cheeky Chimps closed suddenly in February, leaving many disappointed families who had bought year passes. Haverhill Leisure Centre and Dizzy Ducks Nursery moved to help parents by offering free use of some facilities.

Sign up for hospice Girls Night Out

A HAVERHILL woman is helping promote a charity Girls Night Out and urging others to join her in taking part.

St Nicholas Hospice Care is inviting Haverhill women to join the biggest party of the year and help it to celebrate the fifth birthday of the Girls Night Out moonlight walk on Saturday, September 14.

Sharon Crocker, 43, of Haverhill, is walking for the fourth time this year and features in all the marketing materials.

She said: "My stepdad died at the hospice in June 2009, so we didn't do it the first year Girls Night Out was held, but signed up in 2010 and have done it every year since."

"Then my mum died at the hospice on September 2, 2012. She was in the hospice for three weeks in August last year, then she went home for nine days before returning to the Hospice on September 1."

"Since she died I have been back to the hospice for bereavement counselling and I feel really close to her there."

"The hospice is an amazing place. The people there are just beautiful."

"Going back to the hospice gives me a lot of comfort, it's a really beautiful place. If I can give anything back to help keep it going then I will."

"This year I want to get as much support for this worthwhile cause as possible."

To sign up, visit the Haverhill High Street shop or go to www.stnicholashospicecare.org.uk

New River of Life church is approved

A NEW church and community centre has received planning consent, despite fears that it could cause noise disturbance and parking problems.

Members of St Edmundsbury Borough Council's development control committee meeting approved the River of Life Community Church's plan for the building on land at the junction of Chaplewent Road and Sperling Road, Haverhill.

As well as providing a place of worship, the plan includes a 350-seater auditorium, plus a cafe, offices, conference facilities and a crèche.

The church, which currently meets in schools and other halls, will now set out to raise more than £3million needed to pay for its own building.

Haverhill Town Council supported the plan, but raised concerns about whether the 80 parking spaces allocated would be adequate for the size of the building.

The council received 45 letters of objection from neighbours who were unhappy with the size of the building and felt it was not in keeping with the local area and would spoil the architectural look of Chaplewent Road.

Those who objected were concerned about increased activity in the area leading to an increase risk in vandalism and crime. It was also described as looking like a "bingo hall or commercial retail unit".

jo.deeks@cambridge-news.co.uk

Residents also said the building would give no direct benefit to the local community and mean the loss of an area used by children to play in.

It was felt the area would be better served by a community centre.

However, councillors were told that Highway authorities were satisfied that the parking provision for the building was adequate.

In order to determine the existing background noise levels, noise monitoring had been carried out on two separate occasions at a Sunday service.

Consent was granted subject to conditions, including a noise limiting device being installed inside the building and an acoustic screen provided in the car park.

The report said it would provide a community facility in a sustainable location, with links to public transport routes. There will also be bike racks provided and shared transport schemes to reduce cars visiting the building.

The report to councillors concluded: "The proposed use is not considered likely to lead to an increase in anti-social behaviour or vandalism as it will result in a vacant site being brought into use, with activity in the area deterring crime."

The River of Life church in Haverhill has rising congregations and supports the Reach charity in Haverhill, which runs the town's thriving Food Bank and Furniture Bank, as well as providing free debt counselling for families in financial difficulties.

The church carried out its own consultation in April and May last year, including a postal survey of 590 homes around Chaplewent Road, and concerns had been considered in designing the building.

Pastor Paul Turner said on the church's website: "As a growing church we have a vision to build a Church Community Centre on Chaplewent Road."

"After many hours of planning and consultation we now have a scheme that we feel reflects the needs of the church and that will benefit the community."

SPRING CLEAN: Youngsters Lily-May, Samuel Power and Emily Bonfield picked up six bags of rubbish along their route to school in Haverhill

Litter-picking children clean up on the walk to school

THREE youngsters decided to clean up the route they walk to school and ended up with six bin bags full of rubbish.

Lily-May Power, 6, her brother Samuel Power, 5, friend Emily Bonfield, 5, and their parents, carried out their two-hour spring clean between Withersfield Road and Place Farm Primary Academy in Haverhill on Sunday.

They made posters to put up and invited others to join them on Facebook. Sally Power and her husband Steve joined their children, along with Jane and Gary Bonfield, as well as Emily's one-year-old brother Jensen.

Mrs Power said: "They saw something in the paper about a Keeping Suffolk Clean appeal and wanted to do their bit.

"We asked at the school, but sadly only one other family came forward to join us. Our route to school is disgusting and we wanted to do something because we use it every day.

"We were lucky that the sun came out, but it was horrific the kind of stuff we found, the number of bottles and cans. "We hope we might make a few adults feel guilty. The children all worked really hard and it looked much better when we had finished.

"As a parent I think it's great to do this for the community, as it's just showing respect to those residents whose homes we pass every day.

"Even children Lily and Sam's age are aware we need to look after our planet."

Policing meeting for town

SUFFOLK'S new Police and Crime Commissioner, Tim Passmore, will pay a second visit to Haverhill next week when he stages the first in a series of District Panel meetings.

Mr Passmore, who was elected last November, was at last month's stormy police priority setting meeting, when Suffolk County councillor Guy McGregor received an angry reception to his plans for 'shared space' as an alternative to banning cars in Haverhill High Street.

Mr Passmore will be in Haverhill on Friday, April 19, at 2.30pm, when he has invited representatives from community groups, businesses and other partners to a public meeting at the Arts Centre, to discuss his plans for policing in the west of the county.

On the agenda will be the Commissioner's recently published Police and Crime Plan and an update on the Constabulary's performance. The public are welcome to attend the district panel meetings to listen to the discussion.

Anyone wishing to talk to Mr Passmore directly is welcome to book a slot in the one-to-one surgery which will take place after the panel meeting from 4.30pm- 6.30pm. Contact him by e-mail on spcc@suffolk.pnn.police.uk or telephone 01473 782774 to book an appointment.

Drug raid on show society's chairman

POLICE raiding the home of a town's annual show society chairman found a small amount of cannabis in the hallway and a carving knife in the front of his car, a court has heard.

Mick Driver, 58, appeared at Bury St Edmunds Magistrates Court on Tuesday where he admitted charges of having a bladed article and cannabis resin at his home in Elmhurst Close, Haverhill, in January.

District Judge Celia Dawson told him she was dealing leniently with him because of his early guilty pleas and the fact that he was essentially a man of good character.

She said: "If I thought for one moment that you had that knife in your car to use it on anybody else, or for self defence, I would be considering locking you up. It would be an extremely serious matter. However, I do accept the explanation given by your solicitor."

jo.deeks@cambridge-news.co.uk

Driver, who is the main organiser of the annual Haverhill Show, was fined £50 for possessing the knife and £25 for possessing the cannabis, plus £100 costs.

Lesla Small, prosecuting, said the matters came to light because police executed a search warrant on Driver's home. He was not home at the time, but when he arrived in his car, officers noticed a large knife on the front dashboard and arrested him.

He volunteered information that there was a small amount of cannabis in the property and handed it to police. When interviewed, Driver said he had found the cannabis and suspected it belonged to the teenage daughter of a woman who had been staying with him.

Claire Lockwood, for Driver, said: "He found the cannabis in his home and was very concerned about it.

"He has never been a drug user and he intended to confront the teenager he suspected had put it there."

The knife was part of a carving set he acquired in a house clearance. He had used it to scrape ice off the windscreen of his car.

After the hearing, Driver said: "I was only trying to help people. I expect it will finish me as chairman of the Show Society."

Police appeal to pet owners after woman is bitten by dog

A POLICE officer is urging owners to muzzle their pets after she and another woman were both badly bitten in separate incidents.

Police Community Support Officer Kayla Packman was bitten earlier this year by a dog which sank its teeth into her finger as she put a leaflet through a letterbox in Haverhill.

In the latest incident in Queen Street, Haverhill, at lunchtime on Saturday, a woman was bitten on the thigh as she walked past a man with a sandy coloured Shar Pei type dog.

The woman, who was a dog trainer, told police that when she confronted the owner, he denied that his dog had bitten her and walked away.

PCSO Packman said: "This was a nasty injury and we ask owners to muzzle the dogs in public if they bite."

Sainsbury's help out with cash for breakfast club

TUCKING IN: Pupils from Samuel Ward Academy visited Sainsbury's to receive cash for their breakfast club

PUPILS at a school in Haverhill will be tucking into a hearty breakfast in future with a little help from a local supermarket. A group of students from Samuel Ward Academy went along to Sainsbury's supermarket in the town to receive a cheque for £150. The money will be spent on food for the breakfast club, which encourages students not to miss out on the first meal of the day and to eat something healthy which will help them concentrate.

Heads 'can't afford' basic school repairs

GARETH MCPHERSON
EDUCATION CORRESPONDENT

HEADTEACHERS in Cambridgeshire are seeing their school buildings crumbling around them because they cannot afford to make basic repairs.

More than £22 million worth of repairs, such as replacing flaky paint and rebuilding dilapidated playgrounds, need to be carried out at the county's council-run schools over the next five years.

That sum does not even include the unmet maintenance requirements of academies, which account for all but two of Cambridgeshire's 30 secondaries, who have to apply to the "lottery" of repairs funding from the Government.

Caroline Derbyshire, headteacher of Linton Village College and chairman of Cambridgeshire Secondary School Headteachers, said the situation is "scandalous".

She said her school's capital funding for maintenance was reduced from £90,000 a year to under £20,000 when the Government slashed the building and repairs pot two years ago.

The problem is exacerbated by the fact that county schools are about to get the worst basic funding level in the whole country.

She said: "The fact that our schools are already so poorly funded at a per pupil level makes this situation especially challenging.

"Schools in other counties have significant funds carried forward year on year which enable them to contribute to building projects.

"This is beyond the scope of Cambridgeshire schools. The unfairness of this is scandalous. Funding for education in this country is a postcode lottery."

She said money is going to building new schools to cope with rising populations while schools "are having to cope with deteriorating buildings".

The school field at St Paul's Primary School in Cambridge, which has capital funding of just £7,000 a year, is becoming a hazard, according to Cambridge MP Julian Huppert, because they cannot afford to fix the problem of rubble emerging through the soil.

Ex-Cambridge teacher Geoff Fewtrell, of the NASUWT union, said: "Having been a teacher for years and years you get used to not being in plush conditions, but when you're talking about boilers not working, pathways not properly maintained and roofs not being fixed it becomes a health and safety issue for everyone."

A county council spokesman said many of the £22m worth of repairs are non-urgent and scheduled over the next five years.

Students see the appliance of science

VISIT: Students from Castle Manor Academy paid a visit to biotech company Genzyme, with assistant principal Matt Gill

CHEMISTRY students paid a visit to leading local Biotech company Genzyme, as part of their A Level studies last week. The students from Castle Manor Academy in Haverhill used Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Spectroscopy (NMR) to analyse a sample of sugar and learned about the work that Genzyme is doing in the development of treatments for diseases such as Cystic Fibrosis. Dr Wolstenholme-Hogg, who runs the NMR lab, discussed some advanced concepts with the students including Quantum Mechanics, cutting edge NMR analysis and Genetic Engineering. All three students are hoping to study Chemical and Biological Sciences at university in September and the visit was a chance for them to see how the things they are learning in lessons relate to 'real life science'. Castle Manor Assistant Principal, Matt Gill, who accompanied the students on the visit, said:

"Today's visit provided a fantastic opportunity for students to experience the real applications of science."

"Last week we had Biology students visiting a lecture at Cambridge University to see the academic side of science and this week we were able to see the commercial side. "These experiences really bring studies to life. We thank Genzyme for their hospitality and look forward to more visits in the future."

Homes plan for industrial site

PLANS to demolish two industrial buildings and replace them with a house, at Lime Stable Yard, North Street, Haverhill, have been received by St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

Controversial plans for turbine approved

A CONTROVERSIAL plan to put up a 78 metre high wind turbine on farmland has been approved, despite strong opposition.

Farmer James Sills had his application for the site at Chilton Street, Clare, approved by St Edmundsbury borough Council's development control committee meeting last Thursday.

He has also submitted a similar plan for land at Nosterfield End, just outside Haverhill, which has already provoked opposition from local residents, the National Air Traffic Service and Haverhill Town Council. It has yet to be considered by planners.

A report before the committee said objections to the Clare site had been received from English Heritage, who feared the turbine would harm the setting of nearby Clare Castle. The Colne-Stour Countryside Association said it would "create an indelible scar on the landscape, visible for miles."

There were also objections from the Dedham Vale and Stour Valley project, Suffolk Preservation Society and the Clare Society.

Parish councils opposed to the plan included Clare, Stoke by Clare, Ashen, Hundon and Kedington – which questioned its viability as wind speed at the site was significantly less than at other available sites.

jo.deeks@cambridge-news.co.uk

Clare Parish Council said there had been a complete lack of consultation by the applicants with local communities and organisations and it had only become aware of the application when it arrived at the council office.

It noted that no consultation had taken place with Suffolk Highways Department and said given recorded damage to listed buildings, homes and businesses from existing HGV traffic using the A1092 through Clare, further assessment should be provided.

It questioned how 422 additional deliveries to the site, as well as delivery of the 28 metre long turbine blades, could be accommodated without severe disruption to road users and residents.

The Stop Turbines Over Clare Action Group submitted a 55 page objection report, concluding that the levels of energy could be provided in a far less intrusive way and that the harm to the surrounding conservation area would not be outweighed by its benefits. It said the plan was not needed to meet national energy producing targets, it would result in significant harm to the character and setting of listed buildings and negative impact on wildlife including birds and bats, as well as noise that would be detrimental to health.

The report to the committee said the application had to be considered on its own merits, not on the merits of wind farms in general.

It was felt that the turbine would only represent a small part of the extensive landscape character, with views of it limited.

Detailed reports concluded that the scheme would not be harmful to wildlife, aviation, cultural assets, tourism or to the wider locality.

The planning officer said: "In conclusion, the proposal will result in a development that whilst visible, will not be so injurious to the visual amenity of the locality as to justify a refusal of permission in this instance."

A previous plan by BT to put up turbines in Clare was abandoned after wind levels proved it not economically viable.

Back off: this was a genuine mistake

I am writing to defend the leisure centre! (Haverhill Weekly News, April 4.)

This appears to be a genuine mistake to which the pool management have accepted responsibility and apologised with a full refund.

Whilst the experience may not have been a pleasant one for the family, these mistakes can and do happen and I don't think that the six-month-old girl will be scarred for life because of it!

The parents seem to be a little oversensitive about the ordeal.

I have two children and have to deal with this type of thing all the time, but I generally check timetables and do my homework before I visit anywhere for the first time so I'm afraid I don't have any sympathy.

This couple probably felt disgruntled because nobody fell over themselves to keep the pool open for them, a sad reflection on today's society...

I have been a member of the leisure centre for five years and have always found the staff to be polite, friendly and willing to help.

I feel sorry for the girl behind the desk who made the error but hopefully lessons will be learnt on both sides and the family in question will not feel bitter towards the centre and continue to use the facilities, this time with a timetable in their hands.

U3A

AFTER presenting our retiring 'tea lady' with flowers and showing two interesting short video films made by U3A members in Barnet and Stockbridge, where enthusiasts have set up new groups for ukulele playing and belly dancing, chairman Ian O'Neil welcomed us to the serious business of the day – Haverhill branch AGM.

He thanked his present team for their hard work over the year, and was pleased to report an increase in membership to over 350. The monthly meetings had been enjoyed by all as the high standard of speakers on a wide variety of interesting subjects, has been maintained.

The increasing use of email for news and views and for specialist groups to stay in contact with members is proving to be effective. The number of groups has increased by five in 2012, with two more proposed, bringing the total to over forty. Ian also mentioned that the changed catering arrangements for the Christmas lunch worked well and would continue this year.

2014 will mark the 20th anniversary for Haverhill U3A and plans will be made this year to make Open Day (30 September, 2014) a special event.

As retiring Treasurer, John Reading presented the Financial Statement for 2012, which showed a healthy balance, even with reduced funding from the Town Council. The membership cost remains at £10.00 pa, (£5.00 after March for rest of the year).

After the election of officers, our re-elected chairman invited comments from the floor in AOB. The new committee was asked to consider suggestions made by members finding difficulties in joining several special groups already full (to meeting capacity). Thanks are due to the committee and retiring members for making U3A a vibrant part of the local community.

The final part of the meeting was taken by Marie Brown, a senior from Inheritance Legal Services who reminded us that Will writing and estate planning are essential for our peace of mind as we get older, and suggested how to avoid the pitfalls of changed laws regarding lasting power of attorney and probate.

The next talk on 30 April will be 'The World of Optical Illusions' by Colin Hopper.

GETTING CREATIVE: Some ancient felt making skills helped produce colourful designs for Haverhill's first Flag Festival in June

Families fly the flag for festival

FAMILIES have been getting creative to help produce designs for a flag festival in June.

Children and adults went along to a flag felt workshop at Haverhill Arts Centre on Saturday to start making up some designs for the town's first Flag Festival. They were invited to learn the ancient art of felt making at the workshop, which followed an earlier one in March. The first workshop consisted of making individual pieces of felt to learn the techniques. The second workshop was to make colourful bunting embellished with beads and sequins, based on a theme of butterflies and flowers, which will then be used to decorate the Arts Centre.

Haverhill Town Council's Flag Festival will see Haverhill Town Centre bedecked in flags, pennants and bunting this summer. The town council decided to organise the event after receiving many compliments on its flag displays around the town last year, as part of the Jubilee and Olympic celebrations.

A designer from the Design Office will use the designs produced to make four large flags based on the four seasons.

Town Clerk Will Austin said: "The people who came along had a lot of fun. We wanted to involve as many people from the community as possible and if the festival is successful, we may well repeat it in future years."

New health group – but no more services

jo.deeks@cambridge-news.co.uk

A NEW health service body, which has taken over responsibility for Haverhill, has appointed a GP from the town on to its board but has no immediate plans to provide any extra services.

The West Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Group took over from the former Primary Care Group on April 1 and is responsible for 25 surgeries across the county, including Haverhill.

Dr Rosalind Tandy of the Christmas Maltings Surgery has been appointed as board member responsible for the Haverhill area.

The new group's chief operating officer Dr Ed Garratt had talks with Haverhill Town Council last year after residents protested strongly about the closure of the town's walk-in Crown Health Centre, despite the fact that it had attracted more than 22,000 visits in just over a year.

Representatives of the former PCG were confronted at a public meeting after saying the centre was too costly to run and had failed in its aim to reduce the number of Haverhill patients going to A & E departments.

Residents said this was because it did not have promised x-ray facilities and demanded better health facilities for the town, including reinstatement of its out-of-hours doctors base on weekdays.

The town's health centre in Camps Road has recently undergone a major renovation project, but no new facilities have been provided there.

Dr Garratt said: "The CCG have supported the local GPs during the period following the closure of the Crown, including adding extra funding to support the transition to the new arrangements.

"We are also working closely with the ONE Haverhill Board to map all the existing health services and health needs in the town.

"Part of that work includes the ONE Haverhill Board putting together a leaflet for residents to provide a directory of local health services.

"Harmoni is commissioned to run its out of hours services with a base in Haverhill and this remains the case. The health centre, which has been recently revamped, houses a wide-range of healthcare services including mental health support, physiotherapy, podiatry, health visitors and district nurses. There is currently no plan to provide x-ray services in the town."

Dr Tandy has worked at the 18,000 patient practice in Haverhill since 2006.

She said she feels the people of Haverhill are often disadvantaged by poor transport links, social deprivation and by being on the borders of three counties.

She said: "It is important that the population here have a voice when it comes to health care provision, and I feel passionate about helping to provide this.

"We have a large healthcare team around Haverhill, and I feel it is important that all members are supported and included so that we can work together during times of change."

CONGRATULATIONS: Stepping Stones leader Elaine McManus is congratulated by deputy mayor of St Edmundsbury, Cllr Christopher Spicer

Elaine gets her nursery qualification

AFTER more than 20 years in charge of a pre-school group, Elaine McManus is celebrating achieving her Early Years Professional Status qualification.

Elaine, a former Haverhill Town Mayor, was congratulated by Deputy Mayor of St

Edmundsbury Cllr Christopher Spicer when he visited the Stepping Stones group, based at Coupals Primary School in Haverhill. Elaine has spent the past six months travelling to the University College Suffolk campus in Ipswich to work to study for the qualification. She said: "I think it is better for the children if you are qualified and there is always something new to learn."

"It was very enjoyable, I love working with the children."

Jail drug smuggler sentenced

ATTEMPTS to smuggle illegal drugs into a Suffolk jail are an increasing problem, a court has heard.

Ipswich Crown Court was told in a bid to tackle the issue, prison authorities were treating it "extremely seriously" – resulting in would-be smugglers ending up appearing before a judge to be sentenced.

Conor Hughes, 21, who handed over cannabis to an inmate because he wanted to give him a present last November, was given a 16 week prison sentence, suspended for a year, and ordered to do 100 hours of unpaid work.

The court was told Hughes had packed the drug inside a blue balloon, along with a strong-smelling foodstuff, in a bid to thwart possible detection.

Prosecutor Godfried Duah said a CCTV operator monitoring visiting at HMP Highpoint at Stradishall, near Haverhill had seen an inmate place something in his mouth and make an unsus-

jo.deeks@cambridge-news.co.uk

successful attempt to swallow it. The prisoner then removed the item from his mouth and placed it in his shoe, where officers later found a wrap of cannabis. CCTV images showed Hughes handing over the balloon to the inmate.

Hughes told police: "It was me, I brought a little wrap of weed with me." He said he had purchased the cannabis for £10 for his friend, who was unaware that he was to receive it.

Mr Duah said that because smuggling into Highpoint was an increasing problem, Hughes had been charged with breaching the Prisons Act rather than the Misuse of Drugs Act.

For Hughes, from Grays, Essex, Alan Barker said: "He was simply trying to give a gift to a friend, a rather stupid act of friendship of which he didn't appreciate the gravity. He has had a rude awakening."

Hospital says thanks to long-serving staff

DEDICATED hospital staff who have served patients for a combined total of more than 17 centuries, have been given long service awards.

A total of 65 staff were presented with certificates celebrating their careers at West Suffolk Hospital at a ceremony sponsored by medical recruitment company ID Medical. Those receiving the recognition included housekeepers, porters, nurses, midwives, administrators and consultants.

Jan Bloomfield, executive director of workforce and communications at West Suffolk Hospital, said: "We would like to offer our sincere thanks and congratulations to everyone who has received a long service award. Over the years, they have shown incredible commitment to West Suffolk Hospital and the patients we serve.

"We are very proud to have so many loyal and dependable colleagues working throughout the hospital."

Deenu Patel, managing director with ID Medical, said: "The whole patient experience is set clearly as top priority in this trust and their dedicated staff aim to attain best practice in a holistic approach to patient experience, encompassing patient respect, safety and quality of care."

Commissioner issues his first policing plan

RESPECT for law and order and the needs of victims of crime are at the heart of the policing plan issued by Suffolk's first Police and Crime Commissioner.

Tim Passmore, who attended a police priority setting meeting in Haverhill last month, has just published his first Police and Crime Plan and Performance Framework, following several months of extensive consultation with the public and stakeholder groups across the county.

The plan clearly sets out his priorities for local policing for Suffolk and how he plans to address these priorities.

He says he aims to make savings by collaborating with others, but

jo.deeks@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

not cutting front line officers, and keeping policing local.

Mr Passmore said: "Over the coming years I want to really focus on making Suffolk a safer place in which to live, work, travel and invest, and my Police and Crime Plan reflects this ambition. Good policing is key to improving life for residents and visitors alike. I want to instil a strong respect for law and order and will keep the needs of the victims of crime at the heart of all that we do.

"Since taking office in November I have met and listened to a wide range of the community to understand their concerns and expectations.

"I believe we all have a part to play in making Suffolk a safe, vibrant and thriving community and I am heartened by the response that I have received.

"Although it is the Police and Crime Commissioner's plan, I am proud it is very much a team effort, involving the Chief Constable, all my partners and colleagues from the voluntary and community sector. It has been drafted to include the views of representatives' groups from the community; it is a public document and a key mechanism for me to hold the Chief Constable to account and ensure the broader community safety objectives are delivered."

Douglas Paxton, Chief Constable said: "The plan gives the constabulary the clarity we need to take the PCC's vision forward over the next four years and gives the public a clear picture of his objectives to make the county an even safer place. "I support Tim's optimism for Suffolk and thank him for his confidence in the constabulary to deliver this plan."

I had no choice but to flee Syria – but one day I'll go back home

Caught in President Assad's brutal crackdown on his own people, Helen was forced to leave the city where she raised her children and return to her home town of Cambridge. ALICE RYAN heard her story.

STARING at her computer in disbelief, Helen Abduldayem couldn't wrench her eyes from the screen. Watching a video on YouTube – of Government forces gunning down rebels in her Syrian hometown of Homs – she'd spotted her son, Danny, at the heart of the action. His head shaved, his torso bare, he calmly sat down in the middle of a roundabout – smack in the line of fire.

"I kept playing it over and over again, thinking 'That's my Danny,'" remembers Helen. "The three people behind him were hit, but incredibly he wasn't... to see someone you love putting themselves in such danger is terrifying. Absolutely terrifying. But I also felt very proud that my son was standing up for what he believed in; that he was standing up for what's right."

Born and raised in Cambridge, Helen had been living in Syria for almost 20 years when violence broke out between those loyal to the ruling Ba'ath Party and those wanting to oust it. Homs was, she explains, "very much my home: it's where I raised my children, where so many memories were made". But when Danny, her middle son, was declared a wanted man – then gunned down in a botched assassination attempt – Helen and her family were forced to flee.

"Danny was out there on the frontline," she explains. "Whenever he heard the gunfire starting up, he'd be out of the house before we could stop him: he wanted to do his bit. He'd seen more than 30 of his friends – boys his own age, in their early 20s – killed right in front of him; I could understand why he felt so passionately.

"Among other things he'd been getting medication to the rebel forces by motorbike. The government knew what he was doing and I absolutely believe he was shot deliberately. He was standing on the street, a car pulled up, a gun was fired out of the window and he was shot, right in the stomach."

"He was taken to hospital and his friends made a barricade; at that time, activists were going into hospital with a gunshot wound to the leg and coming out with a gunshot wound to the head. He was treated within 20 minutes, then we got him out and into hiding."

"We realised we had no choice: we had to get out. We knew that, if they couldn't find Danny, they'd come after his younger brother and sister instead. So we packed up and left, with nothing but a bag each."

"It might sound odd, but I felt like I was letting the Syrian people down. They'd welcomed me, taken me into their lives, and here I was – leaving them in their hour of need."

After years of living in fear under President Bashar al-Assad's repressive regime, the people of Syria first took to the streets in the March of 2011. Spurred on by the Arab Spring rebellions in neighbouring countries, which saw leaders toppled in Tunisia, Egypt, Yemen and Libya, the tipping point came when a group of children were tortured for spraying anti-Assad graffiti on the walls of their school.

"These kids were 12, 13, 14," says

Helen. "The body of one boy, Hamzah, was returned to his family beyond recognition: his eyes had been gouged out, his genitalia chopped off, his skin burned with cigarettes. People across the country were moved to protest, not specifically against the government, but to demand change."

By the April, Assad's military forces had been deployed to quell the uprising. In the face of open fire, the protests soon became an armed rebellion. "Nobody thought it would get so brutal so quickly," says Helen. "Assad could actually have quelled the uprising – by giving the people what they wanted. But that didn't happen, and the people refused to back down."

Helen met and married her Syrian husband Akram while he was studying English in Cambridge. The couple ran their own nursery in Homs. "Children were leaving our school at 5 able to speak English fluently. When I arrived in Homs, nursery schools had bars on the window; what I was introducing was the concept of learning through play."

Helen has four children of her own: Ziad, Danny and Jannah, all in their 20s, and Sammy, the baby of the family at 16. "I settled into Homs very quickly: the people were so nice," she recalls. "In a lot of ways, it reminded me of Cambridge: it's compact and easy to get around – and everybody knows everybody else!"

Watching her adopted hometown being torn apart, and its residents turned against each other, was, admits Helen, "just awful". "The conflict is portrayed as a civil war between sects, but it isn't: that's something the government has tried to create. I know these people; I lived and worked alongside Christians and Muslims with no problem.

"And probably 70 per cent of the staff at my school were Alouites [members of the same minority sect as President Assad's family]. Now the Alouites are living in a separate part of the city, sending their children to school as normal, while the rest of the city has been flattened and its people forced to flee."

During the first months of violence Helen and her family stood firm in Homs. "I just kept driving around, wanting to see everything. I suppose in a way I wanted to bear witness. And I wanted to get the word out: I wanted the world to know what was going on."

The Abduldayems smuggled a string of journalists into the city, passing them off as job candidates: "My husband was pulled over several times, but he maintained they were teachers we were interviewing. They didn't believe him."

"On one occasion we were stopped and my husband and Sammy were dragged out and were about to be bundled into a car. My daughter and I screamed and screamed and I got my British passport and shoved it in their faces, saying 'Just touch them and see what happens.'"

Men and boys were, adds Helen, 'disappearing' every day. And the rape of women and girls had become commonplace: "One morning a girl was found lying naked outside with her baby beside her. It was horrendous."

Helen says her faith helped her stay strong. Converting to Islam 23 years ago, she says she felt drawn to the religion after losing a child to cot death.

"My husband wasn't a practising Muslim, but when we lost our baby we both found Islam very comforting. In the hardest times of your life, it's very comforting to believe that something much bigger than you is in control."

When the family left Syria, they went first to Egypt then on to London – but soon felt compelled to return overseas to "do whatever we could". As well as assisting Western journalists, including CNN correspondents, they provided aid to Syrian refugees: "We'd fill cars and vans with bread and bottles of water, take them to the camps and throw them over the barbed wire on the Syrian/Turkish border."

Eventually, Helen says she had to accept the situation wasn't tenable: "Sammy, who was 15 at the time, had been out of school for over a year. He'd come out to help us with the refugees, but the rest of the time he was playing computer games. What kind of future was that going to give him? So I decided to come back to Britain. It was a heartbreaking decision to make. How could I carry on with my life, when all these other mothers were stuck knee-deep in mud? It felt like a betrayal. And in some ways it also felt like a defeat."

Finding herself back in Cambridge with her two youngest children (Akram and Danny stayed behind, to continue their humanitarian and campaigning work), Helen was both homeless and penniless.

The local authority said she wasn't eligible for a council house, but could claim housing benefit if she found a property to rent. "I think that was the worst moment. I felt so frustrated I threw a cup at the wall: I just didn't know what to do."

Scraping together a deposit, thanks to family and friends, Helen secured a house. "I had social services coming round to make sure I'd got a decent home for my son, and I hadn't got any furniture – or any money to buy any."

That's when she discovered Cambridge Re-Use, the charity which sells donated homewares to low-income families for bargain prices. "I managed to borrow some more money, came to Re-Use and it was amazing. Every single thing in my house – the furniture, the cushions, the linens, even the cutlery – came from Re-Use. They arranged for it to be delivered within the hour: by the time social services arrived, my house was a home."

And Re-Use gave Helen more than furniture: it gave her hope. "I walked in and broke down. We'd been through so much, and all I wanted to do was to create a home, a safe place for my children. I sat down on a sofa, with a lady either side of me, and they said 'Don't worry, we're here, we can help'. They were amazing. They restored my faith in humanity."

Although English is Sammy's second language, Arabic being his first, he is in mainstream school and doing well, expected to sit six GCSEs.

Although Jannah can't get a place at university, because her certificates are stranded in Syria, she does translation work where she can. And Helen still works tirelessly to raise awareness of the Syrian conflict.

She admits feeling angry about the lack of UN intervention: "If they'd provided a no-fly zone, it would have made all the difference: our forces are winning on the ground, but they don't stand a chance against Assad's aerial bombardment."

UN figures, released in February, estimate the death toll to date as between 70,000 and 80,000.

Helen is sure it far exceeds that figure, with thousands upon thousands of civilians currently 'missing'. She has heard stories of underground prisons and even an extermination centre; it is, she says, "another Holocaust". "In the future people will look back and think 'Why was nothing done?' It's a tragedy."

Danny – who is well-known for his citizen journalism and has granted numerous media interviews, including to Newsnight's Jeremy Paxman – continues to campaign against the Assad regime. And Akram continues to work on behalf of the Syrian refugees overseas.

With her family so spread out, Helen admits she longs for the day when they will all be reunited – back in their home town of Homs.

"I don't want to take my children back into danger, but as soon as it's safe I want to go back: I want to help rebuild the city and the country I love."

"There are times when I feel overwhelmed, yes, but I'm always pushing forward."

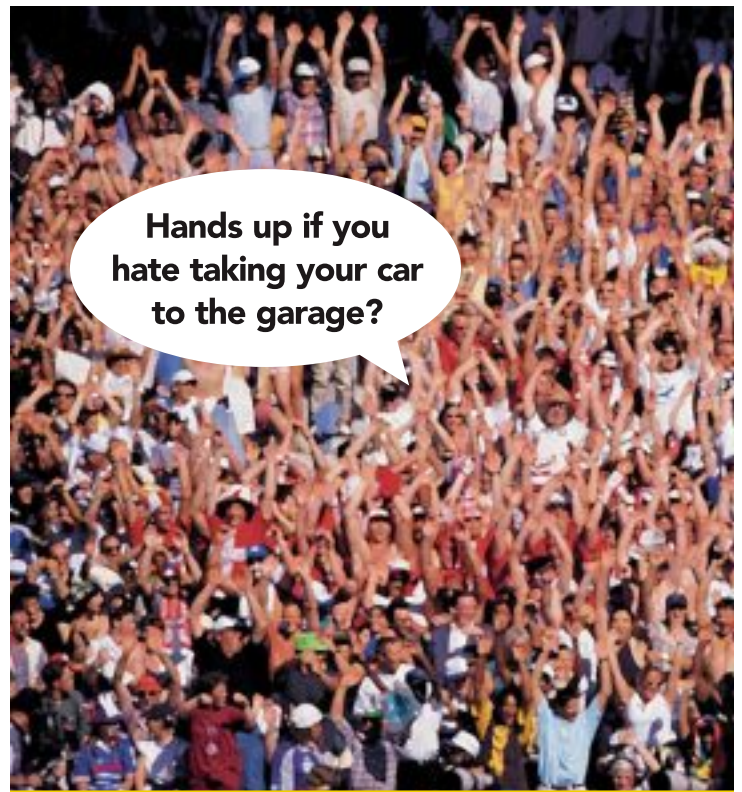

"You have to look forward. And you have to have hope."

FAREWELL: Di Knightly, Patrick Crouch with Cllr Pat Hanlon

Staff members say goodbye to the Arts Centre

TWO familiar faces at an arts centre have retired after many years of service.

Di Knightly has worked in the Bistro at Haverhill Arts Centre for the last 16 years and has made many friends during her time there. Patrick Crouch, a casual Duty Officer, retired for the second time on his 70th birthday in February.

Recently staff, family, friends and former colleagues came together to say their goodbyes.

Town Clerk Will Austin paid tribute to Di and expressed his thanks on behalf of all her colleagues and customers.

Di said: "It has been a lovely but emotional day. Customers have been bringing in flowers and presents and my colleagues organised a lovely surprise party to say goodbye.

"I will miss everyone I have worked with and served over the years but they haven't seen the last of me. I shall be back there on Wednesday with my grandson so they had better not burn my teacake."

Di is looking forward to spending more time in her garden and never having to cook another All Day Breakfast.

Patrick started working at the Arts Centre in December 1995 and remembered the highlights and low lights of the job – welcoming famous artists one moment and clearing up vomit the next.

Patrick said that he enjoyed his job and the challenges that it brought enormously.

He is still an active member of the Local History Centre so will be popping in regularly.

The new face in the Arts Centre Bistro is Mel Bassett who will be taking over from Di.

She has previously worked in Déjà Vu and is looking forward to the challenge and developing the menu and the catering services available at Haverhill Arts Centre.

Mel said: "Although Di was only small, I feel I have very big shoes to fill. I am excited by the potential of the Arts Centre Coffee Shop and developing an offer that can't be found elsewhere in Haverhill.

"I look forward to welcoming customers old and new."

New evening classes in Haverhill and Clare

TWO new evening classes run by West Suffolk College will be starting in Haverhill and Clare next week.

A Monday Evening Beginners Ballroom and Latin American Dance Class will be held at Stour Valley Community School, in Clare from 7pm to 8.30pm, starting on Monday, April 15. The five-week course aims to introduce Ballroom and Latin American dancing to everyone, no matter what their previous dance experience. This is the first course the College has run in Clare for many years and there are plans for more, starting in September.

A Tai Chi course will start on Thursday, April 18 from 7.30pm to 9.00pm at Samuel Ward Academy, Haverhill. This five-week course allows you to practice gentle exercise and breathing skills to promote complete body relaxation, suitable for all ages. For further information, call (01440) 712177, email haverhill@wsc.ac.uk or log on to www.westsuffolk.ac.uk

Haverhill band has a busy start to the year

HAVERHILL Silver Band has had a busy start to 2013, taking on some top class opposition.

The band took part in the Butlins Mineworkers Contest in Skegness and the regional qualifying contest for the National Brass Band Championships in Stevenage. Although the band finished outside of the prizes at both contests the judges were very complimentary about the quality of the band's performances.

The band was also involved in a hugely successful February concert in Cambridge, organised by assistant conductor Lisa Jardine-Wright, which raised more than £3,000 for Cancer Research UK.

The Band's next concert is at the Arts Centre on Sunday, April 26, and will feature dance band and traditional brass band numbers, plus it will perform at the upcoming South of England Entertainment Contest, when it defends the title it won last year. Tickets are available from the Arts Centre on (01440) 714140.

the GUIDE

Noises Off

AS Michael Frayn's farce Noises Off heads for the Cambridge Arts Theatre, Ella Walker speaks to one of the show's stars, Saffron Walden actor Simon Bubb...

"KEVIN Spacey came to see our first night," says Simon humbly. "He was very nice to me – I'd had my big break out of the Old Vic – he was very proud that I was coming back for a show with them."

The local lad – Simon grew up in Rickling Green, just outside Saffron Walden – is starring in Michael Frayn's Noises Off, alongside Neil Pearson, above. Put on by the Old Vic, it's a farce of face-aching, stomach-wobbling hilarity playing at Cambridge Arts Theatre this week.

After throwing himself into school plays, the charming and eloquent actor went on to study English at Manchester University and got stuck into the drama society where "people just sort of said, actually you're good, you should try and train professionally".

So he did, spending two years at what was the Webber Douglas Academy of Dramatic Art in London before trying his luck on the stage.

It was the 24-hour plays, an idea introduced by Kevin Spacey, the Old Vic's artistic director, in 2005 that offered him his 'big break' and well and truly kick-started his theatre career.

"You've got actors, writers and directors, who have 24-hour periods in which to create several little plays from nothing," Simon explains. "The writers write it out of nowhere and the actors have to learn it and rehearse it and that night they put it on. They did it with celebrities and then they did it with up-and-coming people in the theatre so I auditioned for that and got in."

It was a springboard that led to him working in a range of RSC and National Theatre productions, including St Joan with director Marianne Elliott, who was also about to start working on a little production called War Horse.

"I'd always wanted to do something set in the First World War so I wrote to Marianne and said 'Please think of me if you're casting.'" Fortunately for him, she did – and Simon found all 6ft 3in of him cast in the uniformed role of Captain Stewart.

"It was, yeah, it was just amazing," says Simon with a hint of wistfulness. "I remember the first day of rehearsals, we were all in the rehearsal room, and before we did anything they got the puppeteers to step inside and take the horses round the room. The whole room just went quiet and I think we, well I, realised then, that this might be something special."

In Noises Off he plays Tim Allgood, the hapless company stage manager of Nothing On (the ramshackle play within the play). He first saw the play 10 years ago, and admits: "I've literally never laughed so much in the theatre. It's the funniest thing I've ever seen. I think it was just one of those things, when you've seen something like that you think it must be so much fun to be in."

"It is an incredibly technically difficult thing to pull off. It's like learning a really complicated dance routine almost, because the whole of the second act is pretty much done in silence but has millions of little moves where everything has to be in exactly the right place."

■ Noises Off, Cambridge Arts Theatre, until Saturday, at 7.45pm. Tickets £15-£35 from (01223) 503333 cambridgeartstheatre.purchase-tickets-online.co.uk

wordfest 2013

WE'RE gearing up for Cambridge Wordfest's spring literary festival, and courtesy of our sister paper the Cambridge News you can bag 2-for-1 tickets.

Highlights of the three-day April festival – for which the News is once again media partner – include author Andrew Wilson exploring the life of Sylvia Plath on the 50th anniversary of her death, and a celebration to mark 200 years since the publication of Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice, with John Mullan and Paula Byrne.

Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie joins the festival as part of a rare UK visit; the award-winning author of Half of a Yellow Sun and Purple Hibiscus will discuss her fearless latest novel, Americanah – a story of love, identity and the fight for happiness against a tide of economic and political uncertainty. And Sandi Toksvig will talk about her latest novel, Valentine Grey, which captures war, yearning for liberty and the suffocating social pressures of Victorian Britain.

Masterful historian Antony Beevor will deliver his powerful account of the Second World War, interweaving gripping narratives of moral choice, ideological hypocrisy, mass tragedy and unpredictable kindness. Plus James Buchan documents the Iranian revolution in Days of God, and Lindsey Hilsum discusses Sandstorm, a detailed portrait of Libya from Gaddafi to revolution.

Infamous drug baron turned crime writer Howard Marks takes us into the complex mind of DS Price in his latest investigative thriller, The Score, while crime queens Christobel Kent and Louise Welsh will also discuss the art of a good murder mystery.

Cambridge naturalist Robert Macfarlane

will share his love of the great outdoors as lovingly detailed in The Old Ways, his spellbinding examination of place, natural history and literature, while city-based environmental guru Tony Juniper will be asking What Has Nature Ever Done for Us?

Guests are invited to listen in on a conversation between popular novelists Deborah Moggach and Allison Pearson, while Rachel Johnson – sister of Boris and former editor of The Lady – brings a Mitfordian wit to her third novel, Winter Games.

AC Grayling and Frances Spufford tackle the always thorny subject of religion with The God Argument and Unapologetic respectively. Whether believer, non-believer or in a constant state of flux, these talks promise much food for thought.

Plus post-punk indie icon Tracey Thorn – vocalist with Everything but the Girl and several acclaimed collaborations with Massive Attack – will talk about her new memoir detailing her rise to stardom during an experimental era.

There's plenty for younger audiences to enjoy too, including the chance to go on a Bear Hunt, make friends with a Wimpy Kid or meet a Beast Quest monster. They can also laugh their socks off with Jeremy Strong, hang out with Jeanne Willis and the Downton Dinosaurs, or watch Nick Arnold demonstrate some Horrible Science.

Perfect plants for patio power

WONDERING what to put in your patio containers this summer? My pansies and violas are looking so forlorn I'm already thinking I'll ditch them in favour of some higher achievers in this unpredictable British weather.

Help is at hand, in the form of a new trial from Which? Gardening, the Consumers' Association magazine, which last summer tested 47 new varieties of plants for containers or hanging baskets, bought as plugs or young plants in April and then planted into suitable containers.

The young plants were grown under cover until the threat of frost had gone and planted in container compost with added slow-release fertiliser.

The trial found that the easy-care plants which produced plenty of blooms included Argyranthemum 'Yellow Empire' (Mr Fothergill's), a classic marguerite with bright yellow daisy-like flowers which – with some deadheading – produced masses of flowers throughout the summer.

Another winner, which combined well with the marguerites, was Bacopa 'Atlas' (Dobies, Mr Fothergill's, Suttons), a blue and white variety which makes a background for blowsier plants in a mixed planting. This variety also produces unusually large flowers, almost 2cm across, and trails brilliantly. Those trialled flowered continuously for 18 weeks.

by Hannah Stephenson

Diascia 'Blue Belle' (Plants By Post, J Parker's), a new variety launched at the Chelsea Flower Show last year, cascaded over the sides of the basket and didn't need deadheading, while Petunia 'Queen Bee' (Spalding Plant & Bulb Company) proved a vigorous grower, producing a plentiful mix of yellow and deep purple blooms and a succession of flowers despite heavy rain.

Among the best rain-tolerant plants tested was the Pelargonium 'Pacific Black Knight' (Dobies, Suttons), an ivy-leaved variety with velvety flowers, which continued to flower until the trial ended in October.

If you want to grow flowers for cutting, have a go with Dianthus 'Green Trick', an unusual hybrid sweet William with large, fuzzy green heads, which last at least 10 days in a vase.

There are ways to help your patio plants along. Use big pots, if you can, so there are more nutrients for the plants to root out, and the more compost there is, the more water is retained.

Water the compost thoroughly rather than little and often, to allow the water to seep deep into the pot and encourage healthy root growth, rather than just wetting the surface.

Make sure your compost doesn't dry out because it can be difficult to rehydrate. If you are using hanging baskets or smaller pots, they may recover if you dunk the base in a bucket of water for a while, to allow the water to soak the compost from below.

■ The full report is in the April edition of Which? Gardening magazine. Sign up to Which? for a one-month trial for £1 at www.which.co.uk/signup

Find 1000s of cars locally

Save money with a visual pre-MoT

RESEARCH from the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders indicates that around 1.5 million MoT failures each year could be avoided if motorists notify the dealer of simple problems with the vehicle before the annual roadworthiness test is carried out.

In the biggest campaign of its type, 5,545 manufacturer main dealers across the UK will be giving guidance to motorists on the simple pre-MoT visual checks they can carry out on their own car.

MoT time: Take a minute to forewarn the garage of any work that might need doing.

Taking just a 'Minute Or Two', the 10-step checklist takes vehicle owners through a series of quick-and-easy checks – starting with headlights and tyres and proceeding to wind-screen wipers and fluid levels.

By forewarning the dealership of any required work in advance of the MoT, motorists can then give their vehicle the best chance of passing the test first time around.

The full 'Minute Or Two' checklist can be viewed at www.passmy-mot.co.uk, where visitors can also use a Garage Finder tool to locate their nearest dealer.

New C4 Picasso nose its the best

CITROËN has released the first details of the new C4 Picasso, highlighting its larger boot, lower emissions and colour displays.

The sharply styled model is the first compact MPV to offer the possibility to dip below the 100g/km threshold for free road tax, and uses a new modular platform that has enabled up to 140kg to be saved and interior space to be increased thanks to a front overhang that has been shortened by 70mm.

A range of engines at the car's launch will include new Euro 6-compliant diesels with power outputs from 89bhp to 148bhp.

Manual and automated manual gearboxes will also be available, with a traditional automatic transmission pencilled in for early 2014.

Highlights of the new engine line-up is the entry-level 89bhp e-HDi with 74mpg and just 98g/km of CO2.

Arguably even better is the 148bhp BlueHDI diesel, which only emits 110g/km of CO2.

More details and prices will follow, with the first deliveries expected in the autumn.

Rovers upset by lowly opponents

HAVERHILL came away from a drizzly Clacton with the hosts taking all three points for only the second time since November.

Clacton were the better side in the first half, the foot of the right post twice coming to Haverhill's aid when it stopped Ray Turner's 15-yard shot from going in and also thwarted Aaron Condon's low shot which deflected off away defender Ryan Henshaw.

The hosts edged ahead in the 28th minute, a moment of indecision from Sam Holmes giving the tricky Jake Clowsley the chance to nip in, avoid Henshaw and beat goalkeeper Ed Wootten low and to his left.

The lead only lasted four minutes, however, a pinpoint free kick from 30 yards by Jack Higgs levelling.

Clacton led again five minutes after the break, the ball not being cleared from around the six-yard box and Kevin Coyle thumping a volley past the unsighted Wootten.

The away side came in to the game more and got a deserved equaliser in the 67th minute, Jack Wilkinson's miscued shot deflecting into the path of Jack Twinn, who teed up Higgs from 15 yards.

Clacton went ahead for the third and final time after 86 minutes, a corner being hooked back in from the byline, Tom Austin heading the ball on and Turner, at full stretch, making sure the ball crossed the goal line to give his side the win.

Setback for HSA ambitions

HSA fell to a disappointing defeat with a performance that was well below par.

Starting positively, HSA created the first real chance as Craig Cutts spun his marker and drilled the ball across the six-yard line. His cross was met perfectly by Adam Palmer, whose effort was kept out by an unbelievable save from home custodian Wass.

The remainder of the half was fairly even, with both sides being restricted to long-range efforts until Jon Welsh conceded a penalty in injury time. Harwich skipper McLaughlin beat Liam Cutts with his powerful effort despite Cutts getting a hand on the ball. The second half saw HSA exerting more pressure which looked to have brought an equaliser after an hour. Owen Longley's cross was met by the head of Paul Hunt, the midfielder's effort appearing to be going in as Palmer smashed the ball home to make sure. Unfortunately, Palmer was deemed to be in an offside position and the goal was ruled out. Harwich stepped up a gear and scored a second after 67 minutes as Oldhamstead looped a free header over the stranded Cutts.

With HSA committing more men forward, Harwich twice more caught them on the break with Oldhamstead getting his second and 16-year-old Beecham rounding off the scoring.

This was an uncharacteristic defeat from HSA who must bounce back at Dedham on Saturday as they aim to take the runners-up spot.

RICKY Brown and Mickey Lansdowne touched down twice each as Haverhill ended their season with a 40-23 win over Mildenhall Red Lodge in Greene King IPA Eastern Counties Two.

Mildenhall went 6-0 up before Jake Jeffs landed a penalty for Haverhill. The visitors' Fijian flanker skipped past three tackles to place the ball down for an 11-3 lead after half an hour.

Jeffs kicked a second penalty to narrow the gap before good work at the scrum saw Haverhill turn the ball over, and the quick thing of Brown saw him dart over the line.

And Haverhill turned over possession again and a kick on bounced fortunately for Hunt to touch down for 16-11 at the break.

After half time, Brown harassed the Mildenhall scrum-half to earn his second try, and Mickey Lansdowne soon followed him as Jeffs' conversion and a penalty made it 33-11.

Mildenhall battled back for an unconverted try before Lansdowne pounced for his second.

With the final play of the game, Mildenhall scored a converted try.

Pitching in to launch Blackjacks

HAVERHILL Blackjacks Baseball Club start their inaugural season on Sunday April 21 at Waltham Abbey in what should prove to be an exciting venture.

Their first match against Essex Archers (3pm first pitch) will be the culmination of hard work by the staff and players of the club to get the side going.

The first home game follows at The New Croft on Sunday May 12 (12pm start).

Head coach Steven Esdale has seen the club being put together and is impressed by some of the commitment that has been shown.

"When I started looking at the club about a year ago there was almost nothing except for the hope of it being put together," he said.

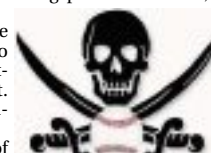

"Since then people have come out of the woodwork to help and it could be even better than I thought at the start. We're still getting people coming forward now."

The squad is comprised of people from a variety of backgrounds, be it Americans who have played before when they were younger, footballers, ex-Braintree Rays players, newcomers to the game, hockey players, cricketers, male and female.

Anyone interested in the club can contact Esdale at sesdale@yahoo.co.uk or on 01440 704049 or 07811 030564 in the evenings.

The club also has a Facebook page and a mini site within the British Baseball Federation (BBF) web site at bbf.org, which also contains the schedule for the season.
